Wain'ght Inspectorate Teachers' Convention

Between 150 and 200 of the teachers of the Wainwright Inspectorate were in attendance on Thursday last at the annual convention which was held in the L.O.P.E. hall in town.

Interpreted with items of a purely business nature, the programme was filled with speakers, each of whom imparted a message of peculiar import to the profession, and which were all listened to with rapt attention.

Major Dr. Middlemass welcomed the visitors to town in a well-chosen speech, to which response and acceptance was given by Mr. G. Taylor, of Kinross. Mrs. Morrison extended a welcome on behalf of the Public School Board.

During the afternoon of the first day, Mr. G. F. McNally, deputy minister of education, gave an interesting address on "The new curricula for our schools," and Inspector L. Good, of Wainwright, was also among the speakers.

An entertainment feature of the convention was the theatre party and dance, which was staged for those attending, this being held at the Elite on Thursday evening, and which met a crowded attendance.

Before adjournment a committee was appointed to study the question of the local musical festival (which was dropped this year) and a round table conference brought up a number of matters of interest to the teaching profession.

The officers of the inspectorate association for the ensuing year are: Pres. Mr. O. Murray, Wainwright; vice-pres. Mr. J. McKinley, Hugen; sec. Mr. J. McKinley, Hugen; and Mr. J. McKinley, Hugen.

The effect which is put forth each year by the members of the local W.I. in behalf of child welfare in this community, will this year take the form of a card party and dance, and tickets for this event are now available from any member of the institute. This promises to be a grand evening's enjoyment, and all should take this opportunity of assisting in this worthy work.

Everyone having card-off clothing which can be passed on to those less fortunate is asked to help by making this known to the ladies (or bunnies) can be left at The Star office to be turned in, and such donations will be gratefully acknowledged as the need is great.

Last Christmas the Institute was able to supply some 48 hampers of food, Christmas fare and clothing to that number of needy families, among which was upwards of 150 children.

OLD EDGE HALL OPENED FOR SEASON

To celebrate the improvements which have been made in the Old Edge Hall, by the addition of a stage and so forth, a splendid supper was enjoyed there last Wednesday by an overflow crowd, among whom was quite a number from town.

The ladies who were responsible for the arrangements are truly to be complimented upon the result of their efforts, and at the clearing of the tables the floor was soon covered with dancers, who embraced that enjoyment well into the early hours of the morning to the strains of a full orchestra.

The funeral of the late Mrs. M. J. Jackson, of Greenshields, whose death was reported last week, was held on Thursday afternoon last at the Wainwright United church, the building being filled with sympathizers and friends to pay their last respects to one who has been beloved by all who knew her.

The pastor, Rev. T. E. Armstrong, conducted the service, and at the close the body was taken to the McLeod undertaking parlors from whence it was shipped on the mid-night train to North Haldy, Quebec, to interment in the family plot there.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. W. Jackson, E. Jackson, J. Patterson, G. Reid, A. Plater and C. Morrisette, all very old friends of the deceased.

Floral tributes of sympathy were from The Family, Mr. and Mrs. W. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Plater, Mr. and Mrs. L. Carl, Mr. and Mrs. Pluher, Mr. and Mrs. Morrison, Loxie and Miss Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. C. Plaxton, Mr. and Mrs. Haywood, Greenshields United Church and L.A., Miss Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. M. Haynes, Mr. and Mrs. A. Kett, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Morrisette, Mr. and Mrs. Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Atwell, Mr. and Mrs. J. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Daniels, Mr. T. Hill.

Attention is particularly drawn to the splendid subscription offer which appears in this issue. It is seldom that such an offer can be made, but through the co-operation of the publishers of the different magazines with The Wainwright Star, it is now placed before you. In order to take advantage of the clubbing rate it is necessary that your subscription to the Star be brought up to date and then $3.00 will be credited on advance subscription to this paper and a full year on the magazines chosen.

Regarding the magazines they can be sent to any address in Canada, or if you are already a subscriber to one of the magazines you can have the money credited as renewal.

In the past quite a number of our readers have taken advantage of this "Bargain in Reading," and if they desire to continue on the same basis it is requested they act at once as we cannot guarantee the length of time the offer can be kept open.

At some time during the night a front window was broken to gain entrance to the premises, and an attempt was made to open the safe. The dial of the combination had been wrenched off in this effort, but the thieves were unable to get the door open, with the result that a large sum of money belonging to a couple of the elevator companies at Greenshields (for whom Mr. Morrison is the paying agent) was found to be intact after the safe had been opened by the use of an acetylene torch; this being the only means of opening the safe after the lock had been so badly treated.

BATTLE RIVER FEDERAL LIBERAL ASSOC. MEET TO DISCUSS AFFAIRS OF IMPORTANCE

Executive Have Busy Session, Followed by Banquet. Jas. McKinnon M.P. Addresses Gathering. Other Prominent Liberals Attend

Following a busy executive meeting of the Battle River Federal Liberal association, at which there was a full attendance on Thursday afternoon last, a banquet which had been arranged by Mr. M. L. Porter, the Liberal candidate in the last general election, and the Battle River executive, was held at the Masonic hall to which nearly 200 guests were invited.

After the clearing of the tables, Mr. Allan Johnson, of Hardisty, president of the association, as chairman for the evening introduced Mayor Dr. Middlemass, who in a few fitting remarks welcomed those present.

In a concise speech, Mr. Gerald O'Connor, M.L.A., of Edmonton gave it as his considered opinion of all thinking persons that the Alberta situation for the government and control of the province were proving impossible as well as most unprofitable for Alberta, and said he thought it only a matter of a short time when this would be fully shown to every elector.

The speaker said that although the promises made to the electors over a year ago may have been made in earnest, it was now very evident that such a scheme was nothing but a voluntary pool of incomes with a charge being made for doing the business. This he considered was nothing but a "boot, strap" left and could accomplish nothing. He claimed that the present was building up a sheer dictatorship, this being especially noticeable in the threats to license the press of the province. He stated that free speech and a free press was for the good of all peoples, for surely all shades of opinion have a right to the opinions they hold, and it is the basic right of each elector to fully know the acts and doings of those who govern them. This was the Liberal party's idea of a true democracy, and any other idea would only foster class hatreds and class control.

Having been introduced by the last speaker, Mr. James A. McKinnon, M.P., the Federal member for West Edmonton riding (the only Liberal member for Alberta in the Dominion House) stated that these were truly strenuous times for men in public life. This was especially so in Alberta, as this province was the only one in the Dominion which has no cabinet minister at Ottawa to assist in the thousands of problems which confront those elected to office.

The speaker said it was probably unfortunate that the last election in this province had not been fought on the issues of politics, but rather on a semi-religious and presumed economic platform, and through that means the electorate had been swept off its feet with unkept promises.

In answering the question "How can the Liberal party in Alberta improve its position?" the speaker said, in part:

"To deal briefly with the situation, it seems to me that Alberta people will turn to Liberal policies rather than try new parties or new experiments when they realize that the Alberta Government is not solving successfully the problems with which Alberta is confronted."

"We must expand the Liberal organization. The party provincially and Federally must be broad enough—progressive enough to take in all those thousands of people in Alberta who are anxiously looking for a way out. I believe that out of the chaotic conditions through which we in Alberta are passing good will come. I believe that the serious, sane thinking people of the Province shall continue to bend their energies towards a workable betterment of conditions, and that the Provincial Liberal party in its choice of a leader—and the Liberal party, Provincially and Federally, in its choice of candidates for election, can accomplish a great deal. In choosing these candidates surely we must all bear in mind the importance of choosing men who are well regarded in their own districts and constituencies—men who will appeal to the independent elector no matter what his recent political affiliations may have been. There is room in the Liberal party in Alberta for all such people, and it is up to the Liberal party to so govern itself and conduct itself that it will attract to it this type of citizen."

"Recently we have been hearing about some interests advocating a new party, its objective being the defeat of the Alberta Government. In my humble opinion such a new party would tend to defeat its own ends by further dividing public opinion. In spite of lapses at times, there have been great faith in the people. There must be room in the Liberal party for all persons who have the interests of the Province of Alberta at heart and especially if they have progressive suggestions to make towards the solution of our economic problems. Of course there are a few who are as much extremists at one end as are the Communists at the other. These people refuse to change with the times but they are usually distinguishable no matter under what name they travel. They have never been very strong or popular in Western Canada."

In the course of his long address, Mr. McKinnon mentioned matters dealing with road-work, the feed and fodder agreement, direct relief, the livestock movement agreement, the farm placement arrangement, the housing and loan act, and several other matters which had been dealt with by the Federal government for the good of all the people of Canada, and pointed out that nearly five-and-one-half million dollars had been provided from Dominion funds so far during 1936 to aid in Alberta's problems."

Mr. W. Campbell, of Edmonton, was the last speaker of the evening and in a lengthy address outlined the history of government and their main phases, with in many instances the results of their endeavors. He pointed out the manner in which money had to be raised and described the working of tariffs, etc. He claimed that all good governments, despite what name the party went under were working for the credit to be obtained from social justice, and cited instance after instance of social welfare acts of government which were all for the betterment of the people at large.

The National Anthem closed the proceedings.

Spending Christmas With Old Home Folks

MONTREAL, Que.—The idea of spending Christmas in the Old Land is a fine idea with a good many people this year and as a result the railway and steamship companies are already making preparations to handle the increased traffic which naturally rises at this season of the year, the trans-Atlantic companies have already listed their pre-Christmas east-bound sailings from Montreal and Halifax, according to C. W. Johnston, general passenger traffic manager of the Canadian National Railways.

There will be seven pre-Christmas sailings from Montreal commencing with the Anania, Ausonia and Duchess of Athol all on November 20; the Duchess of Bedford, November 25; the Montrose, November 26, followed by the Ausonia and Letitia, November 27. From Halifax there will be six sailings of steamers operating to the British Isles and Europe, these being the Ascania and Montcalm, December 5th, the Lancaster, December 6, the Aurania and Duchess of Richmond, December 12 and the Duchess of York, December 13.

In order to take care of the extra volume of passenger traffic by rail for the pre-Christmas sailings additional train service will be in operation by the Canadian National Railways, which will include special trains with trains from the East for conveyance of passengers to the ships leaving from the Canadian ports. Special through sleeping cars will be in service on Canadian National lines, operating from the West through to the ship's side at Halifax.

Gold Occurrences
Subject of Report
For the general information and guidance of prospectors, exploration companies, investors, and others interested in the gold and silver industry, the Geological Survey, Department of Mines, Ottawa, has issued a report (Memoir No. 192) on the gold occurrences of Ontario east of Lake Superior. The report by E. D. Kidd, has been prepared as far as possible in non-technical language, and deals with the geology and mining history of the thirty-two areas in which gold occurs. Descriptions are given of close to 700 gold deposits, and brief accounts are given of the mining development in the more active properties.

The report is essentially a compilation and summary of all the information available on gold occurrences in eastern Ontario to date of April 1, 1935. Most of the information has been derived from reports published by the Ontario Department of Mines, and by the Geological Survey. A selection of references is given for each area.

The publication of the report is particularly timely in view of the fact that a large estate in the ownership of properties that had remained idle for years. It contains a wealth of useful and convenient information for exploration companies and groups of investors who may intend to utilize such properties.

Copies of the report may be obtained from the Director, Bureau of Economic Geology, Department of Mines, Ottawa.

Mr. M. Haynes has just finished the erecting of a large stable and higgery on his farm at Greenshields.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. Doug Wallace on his election to the presidency of his class at the university of Alberta.

Legion Boys Are Preparing Vaudeville
The boys of the local branch of the Canadian Legion are working tooth and nail these days in order to ensure the full success of their big Armistice Day vaudeville show at the theatre on Wednesday next. A big dance is to follow the show and everybody is invited to join in this celebration of the Great War. Of course support is being provided for those attending.

All are asked to remember too that Saturday next is their annual Poppy Day, when your aid is sought on behalf of the disabled returned men. A large number of young girls and ladies will be selling these emblems, and all are urged to be requested to give their aid to this cause.

Old Emerald Well Goes Out of Control

For the past couple of weeks a gang of men have been working at the site of the Emerald oil well on the farm of Mr. H. Dowling some five miles north of town for the purpose of pulling the casing from what has been considered a "dry" hole for some years, but on Thursday evening last from some cause as yet unexplained the hole started up "on its own" and since that time has been blowing some probably millions of feet of wet gas with a roar that can be heard at times right in town, and this has caused some hundreds of visitors to the site to view the affair.

From what can be gathered, arrangements were just about complete to hook on to the top lengths of casing with the idea of salvaging some 1800 feet of it above where the well was "cemented in" before being abandoned when with a terrific roar gas and water was thrown high above the derrick head, and every one made a rush for safety, and the fires in the vicinity were immediately extinguished.

Although the column being shot from the well is not now as high as at first, rocks of quite a size are still being emitted from the hole with the gas and which has built up quite a crater high above the derrick floor, and there is still some fire hazard from an accidental spark which might be caused from rock and metal friction.

At last reports arrangements are being made to cap off the well which in addition to stopping the risk of fire will also serve to conserve the natural gas which may be known to be residual in the territory around the well where several other wells are drilled, some of which are being pumped for crude oil.

Social Credit Meet Opposes Press License

Social Crediters of the Athabasca constituency, at a convention last week refused to support a resolution that the press be licensed. A vote of confidence in Premier Aherhart was passed, however.

It was revealed that 34 per cent of the voters in the constituency had signed Social Credit convicts, which was 740 more than voted Social Credit in the provincial election.

R. E. Ansley M.L.A., for Leduc, said that credit business likely would be established within the month.

Residents of the district have a total of $80,000 in debts, it was revealed from compilation of reports on the Social Credit registration forms.

These debts include $51,000 to doctors and hospitals, $5,000 to stores, $76,000 to machinery, $75,000 to mortgages and $223,000 other debts. Interest is eight per cent in most cases.

Miss Beanie Paul of Strone, was a guest over the week end of Miss K. Hart in town.

Will Rogers Starred
In Comedy-Drama
"Steamboat Round the Bend" which comes to the Elite theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 5-6-7 presents Will Rogers in an entirely different role from what fans are used to seeing him play in, but one in which by wit, ruse and ingenuity, all the fun expected of him is delivered.

In the picture, Doctor John is first presented as a quick medicine peddler on a Mississippi River steamboat. By circumstances, he becomes owner of the boat. Likewise it is revealed that his nephew, whom he has chosen to be pilot, has been suspected of murder. Then, on the Clarendon Queen, Duke appears with Fletty Belle, a swamp girl who was the reason for the self-defense killing. From then on with Doctor John featuring in dramatic portrayals the motivating spirit of the story is his search up and down the river to find New Moses, palm-shouting revivalist and eye-witness of the killing.

During this time John forsakes his quick calling and becomes proprietor of a floating was works museum, the putting together and exhibition of which results in much comedy. He also becomes the prospective rival of Captain Eli in a future derby steamboat race up the Mississippi.

As a last moving sequence, he wins the race and saves Duke from the gallows.

When the Easiest Way Is the Best Way :::::

There are no two ways about it! Certainly the easiest way to get the most for every dollar you spend is to buy products that you know about through the advertisements in your local paper. You don't have to go out and look for buying opportunities. The advertisements bring them to you. And all you need do is consider the facts, compare values and decide on the soap or the sedan that best fits your judgment and your pocketbook.

Certainly the best way of making your money go farthest is to buy merchandise of proved value. Advertised merchandise. Merchandise that is bought and used by many people. Merchandise that must be superlatively good enough for its maker and your local retailer to keep calling it to the attention of people week after week and year after year.

This is the service—of convenience and profit—that the advertisements offer you. It will pay you to read them regularly and take advantage of everything they can do for you.

Results of Researches About the Common Colds

There is one place in the world where a scientific investigation has been made and recorded. These facts are published in the American Journal of Hygiene for May, 1933.

THE LOCAL PAPER (Paisley, Ont., Advocate)

"Up in Penetang the Board of Trade recently called a meeting to discuss the announcement by the town newspaper. The editor of the Penetang Herald, C. M. Hewson, had announced that due to lack of subscribers and advertising in the town, he could publish no longer. Until this move by the editor, the townspeople and merchants of Penetang had failed to give the local paper any encouragement. Subscriptions fell off and the advertising grew less and less until the press of the town began a campaign to interview people and plan ways and means of continuing the publication. The lack of a town paper affects the town badly, and we should do everything we can to get it started again," vehemently declared Mr. J. McTaggart, of the Board of Trade. The same situation occurred some years ago down in Palmerston, where Mr. Anderson, who for years had published "The Spectator" at a financial loss, pulled up stakes and moved to Guelph, leaving the railroad town without a local paper. Citizens and business men of the town who for years had refused to advertise or otherwise support the local paper, set forth to entice another editor to set up shop in Palmerston and finally a party was found who agreed to publish a paper, "The Observer". And having had a taste of a newspaper's exertion for several months, the Palmerston merchants decided that perhaps advertising was the best after all, and today the Observer is one of the best patronized exchanges that come into this office. What is more, the merchants declare that since they began to advertise through the columns of the paper, their business has shown a decided increase in volume and they are taking care that Palmerston will never again be without a local newspaper."

Blood pressure may be defined as something persons of more than 40 worry about. Do not worry about blood pressure; try to understand it. Then, if you must worry, do it before you are 40.

On May 23, 1931, when the first ship came in, everybody in Longyear was well. But among the men on board that ship, there were three men who had colds. One man had a headache and in a few hours he had other symptoms of cold. Another man was hoarse. The third man had a yellow discharge from his nose.

On May 25th three people in Longyear City had colds. The first one who took a cold was the storekeeper, who opened the ship's bags and shook them out. On May 30th, eighty-four people had colds. On June 6th, one hundred and three people had colds and before June 25, twenty-five per cent of the population had colds. Before the end of the epidemic four hundred and seventy-five people, or ninety-five per cent of the population had colds.

A trapper who lived a long way from Longyear City and who had been quite well all winter came to town just before the ship came in on May 23rd. On May 28th he had a bad cold. He went home again as soon as he was better. On August 7th he walked back to Longyear City and on his way he fell through the ice and walked the rest of the way in his wet clothes. On August 8th he had a very bad cold.

The people who live in that part of the world say that anyone who falls into the water in winter or spring, during the time that the place is isolated does not get a cold, but that after the first boat comes in he does get a cold.

The results of this research show that colds are caused by an infection and that they are transmissible and contagious and also that chilling and exposure are not the real cause of colds, but that if an infection is present, then chilling and exposure help to give people colds.

Other valuable researches have been carried on by workers at the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore and Columbia University, New York. The Pickett-Thomson Research Laboratory in London, England, published in 1932 a volume of 738 pages of Dr. David Thomson and Dr. Robert Thomson which contained a review of 2,000 research papers on colds. It is a mine of information on the whole subject.

DIATHERMY—MEAN HEAT IN TREATMENTS

Literally, it means "heating through," this diathermy form of treatment. The apparatus used in administering is expensive. Not many rural physicians nowadays can afford such high-priced stuff, considering the almost impossibility of carrying it to widely scattered bedside patients. Nevertheless, it is, and has been for some time, a growing popular method of applying heat in the treatment of localized inflammations. It will destroy germs by heat that are deeply situated within the body. I seriously doubt, I believe diathermy will greatly accelerate local circulation, hastening the blood through the part affected, and do some good in that way. But, just how much may not be accurately estimated. The destruction of diseased tissue is being brought about by diathermy, thus saving a more or less bloody operation. It should not be attempted by the amateur or beginner without competent instruction. The specialist is the only safe man to employ in the electrical extirpation of the tonsil.

My own experience has not been very pleasing in the use of diathermy, as much as I regret to say so. I have used it in numerous cases of chronic arthritis. Any improvement that was noticeable was very slight. I used it in a desperate attempt to relieve pneumonia in an aged patient—and lost. I believe diathermy to be a very refined, technical, expensive way of applying the simple principle of heat in the treatment of disease. I have yet to be shown that it furnishes greater heat inside the diseased member than on the outside. But I am not an authority, mind you; I am just an intelligent common-sense, family doctor, with thirty-eight years of experience. I do not own a diathermy apparatus, but I work in hospitals where it is available in any instance desired. I sincerely hope it may come to be the standard, accepted method of obliterating diseased tonsils.

STORE VEGETABLES IN HOME CELLAR

The storage of root vegetables for home use during the winter months presents little difficulty. Beets, carrots, cabbage, celery, parsnips, potatoes, and rutabagas, more commonly known as swede turnips, can be stored easily in any frost proof, moist, dark, but properly ventilated cellar. The most suitable temperature for storage is 33 degrees F. In all cases, states T. P. Ritchie, Chief Assistant Horticulturist, Central Experimental Farm, Dominion Department of Agriculture, the vegetables chosen for storage should be well-grown, free from insect injuries and other blemishes, and should be of medium size. Medium-sized vegetables fully grown have much better quality than the larger over-grown products.

A good storage place can be cheaply constructed in the corner of a dwelling house cellar, using either lumber or insulation board. A row of studdings erected with sheathing on the outer and inner sides will prevent the extreme rise in temperature caused by the frost. The door of the storage compartment should be constructed to correspond with the walls and have two sliding panels, one at the top and the other at the bottom as a means of regulating the temperature during very cold weather. It is better if the door is on the outside wall of the cellar can be used as a ventilator. If the cellar floor is concrete, a three-inch layer of sandy loam soil should be spread on the part enclosed in the vegetable storage compartment. This will enable the humidity of the compartment to be kept right and by applying water to this layer of soil at intervals the air can be kept moist and prevent the stored vegetables from withering. This soil will also be useful for the storage of the cabbage and the celery plants which should be stored in an upright position with the roots at the bottom.

The roots attached the cabbage with the heads touching and the celery stored as closely together in rows, but with a space of eight inches between the rows.

Staked bins made of lumber, one inch thick by three inches wide, round sides, and floors will allow ventilation and prevent loss through heating. The root crops and potatoes can be stored in these, and when the cabbages and celery are taken from the garden for storage, the loose soil attached to the roots should be carefully removed and the rough leaves stripped off.

HOG RAIL GRADING GAINS POPULARITY

Rail, or carcass grading of hogs which is purely voluntary on the part of producers is rapidly gaining ground in the Dominion, and there is substantial evidence that farmers who have sold their hogs in this manner will continue to do so. The system was introduced in the Prairie Provinces during the present year, and to date more than 30,000 hogs have been sold under it. Rail grading has been in operation in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces since 1935 and has made rapid advancement. During the first 41 weeks of 1935 approximately 71,000 hogs were rail graded and during the corresponding period of 1936 over 240,000 hogs were consigned for sale under this method by farmers in the Prairie Provinces, Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes. Live hog grading which was introduced ten years ago is now being supplemented by rail grading as the second step leading further towards the general production of a type and quality of hog which will produce bacon to complete satisfaction against foreign bacon in the British market, and at the same time stimulate the consumption of bacon in the Dominion. The marketing of hogs on a "ressed weight" rail graded basis, commonly called rail or carcass grading, is exactly what the words imply. A farmer delivers his hogs. The hogs are then tattooed with a number for identification when they are killed. The live hogs are first weighed so that a part down payment may be made. This down payment runs about 75 per cent of the butcher price. The hogs are then killed and weighed individually to the exact pound. An inspector of the Live Stock Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture then grades the hogs on the killing floor according to the standards set up by the Dominion Government, and the final payment is made on the basis of that grade. These grades correspond very closely to the present live grades and the premiums and discounts paid are practically on the same basis. It will readily be seen that the grading inspector is able to do more efficient grading with the

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA
WHY PREVENT COLDS
Do you ever hear of people having pneumonia, bronchitis, pertussis, tuberculosis or influenza, without having a cold first? Almost never. Usually they have had repeated colds. If the patient goes to bed when the first suspicion of a cold appears then it is probable that these other diseases would not develop. But he says that he "cannot go to bed." Next day he is worse. By another day he has to go to bed whether he will or no, and he may pay for his neglect with his life. Other diseases which follow colds are largely caused by colds as well as colds. These diseases are: pneumonia, mastoiditis, disease of the sinuses connected with the nose and face, all of them painful and dangerous diseases as well as hard to cure. Another reason why we should prevent colds and isolate the patient in bed who has a cold is that all the diseases most dreaded in childhood begin the same way as a cold and for the first day or two we cannot tell whether the child has a cold or one of these diseases. Measles, whooping cough, scarlet fever, diphtheria, infantile paralysis all begin in much the same way—with headache, sore throat, watering from the eyes and nose and general malaise. These symptoms are the first to appear. So that when we put the child to bed in his own room and take care of him and keep every one else away from him we are doing the very best thing for him and for everybody else. These diseases often have serious consequences. In measles the lungs, in whooping cough the heart, in scarlet fever the kidneys and the ears, bear the brunt of the attack and the child may never be really strong again. It is always better to take care of the child from the first, whether he has a cold, or whether he may have one of these other diseases. It has recently been shown that a dangerous germ which is found in the nose and throat of many persons suffering from colds is the cause of most cases of puerperal fever or childbed fever. Puerperal fever is the greatest single cause of maternal mortality. This is a very urgent reason why we should prevent colds. The more prevalent colds are, the worse it is for the health of the community. Stop the supply of the

MODERN WOMEN

CHARL ORMOND WILLIAMS
President of National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

The number of self engravers in the world is very small and one of them, Mrs. Bertha B. Sunderland of Larchmont, N. Y., is probably the only woman engaged in this art. At least Mrs. Sunderland knows of no other. Soon after she left Skidmore College, she got a job with the late Otto Negri, considered the greatest master in this art. She has created many rare portraits and designs incised in stone. Tools used for this work are, for the most part, copies of those used by the Romans.

Club women in many of our states are largely responsible for America's first national art show put on in Rockefeller Center, New York, by Mrs. Henry Breckinridge, chairman of the Mayor's Municipal Art Committee. When Mrs. Breckinridge wanted a national exhibit, the Mayor invited the Governors of the states to send in pictures and sculpture by their own artists. Very few responded, so Mrs. Breckinridge got busy with the club women who, through their federation art chairman, rounded up enough native art works to offer a sizeable show.

Few Wall Street firms have women members so it was something of a surprise to hear that Mrs. Elizabeth E. Goss has recently been made a full-fledged partner in a New York brokerage house. Twenty-six years in this business has well qualified her to handle stocks and bonds.

Operating on birds is an unusual profession. These tiny creatures are subject to colds, nervous breakdowns, pneumonia and many other ills which Miss Emilia Steinhacker treats with success in her New York laboratory. She uses a very delicate bandage around a broken leg after it has been set, treat a bird for heart trouble and help to adjust its nervous system. Miss Steinhacker is a niece of the late Dr. J. J. Hanna, one of the founders of the French

NEAT HOUSE FROCK

Pattern 8798: Home sewers do not mind the work of making an extra house frock or two when the patterns are so simple to cut and easy to make as the style sketched. Besides being so delightfully simple to put together this frock is very becoming, slenderizing and practical. The unusual square necking with its pointed outline in the bodice portion is finished off with bias binding and smart button trim, giving the dress an attractive finish. The yoke and sleeves are cut in one as you can see by the diagram and the ash is sewn through bound openings in the front and tied in the back. This frock would be lovely in printed percale gingham or in e.

Geff Brimacombe a week-end guest of Mr. Wm. Hetherington.

Trippers to Edmonton from this district last week were: Mr. and Mrs.
Wm. Seale, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ryben and Mr. Carl Schirfe.

Mrs. Ellen Wilson, having disposed of her house and furniture left last Friday for Los Angeles where she will spend the winter with friends.

Miss Ellie Cleland has now returned home after spending several days in Edmonton in company with her aunt Mrs. Wilson, the latter continuing her journey to Los Angeles.

Mr. Dolt Seale has installed an electric light plant in his farm home at Battleville.

We are glad to report that out-Denise Bamells is recovering from her attack of scarlet fever. Miss Denise was attending the Separate school in Wainwright.

We hear that Mrs. G. H. Kent is preparing to spend the winter in Victoria, B.C. with her two daughters, Miss Dorothy and Miss Phyllis.
Kent, Guy and Aldous will have an opportunity to become experts at making flapjacks this coming winter while they are batching.

We wish to extend the congratulations of this district to Mr. and Mrs. T. Shaw of Battle Heights who recently celebrated their Silver Wedding, and wish them many happy returnings to the day. Mr. and Mrs.
Shaw came to this country in 1926
from Broughton, Derbyshire, England, with their six children. A seventh child, a boy, was added to the family in 1928.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleland are having their home made comfortable for the winter with insulating shavings.

The nice song spell of fine weather we have been enjoying lately and the absence of snow have made it possible for farmers here to get a lot of fall plowing done. Some farmers have as much as 100 to 400 acres of land ready for the seed drill next spring. Tractors can still be heard going from daylight until after nightfall, the people no doubt taking advantage of the beautiful moonlit nights to get as much work as possible ready while weather conditions permit.

HOPE VALLEY

attended the convention in Wainwright last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart of Irma

Duke Ott.

SAFEGUARDING THE PUBLIC

HEALTH

Thousands of deaths, which used to occur each year due to typhoid fever as a result of drinking impure water, have now been saved through the chemical purification of public water supplies, according to an article appearing in the current issue of "The C-I-L. Oval." Chlorine is the chemical used to kill the bacteria, while other chemicals are used to collect the impure, floating particles which often discolor water and render it clear and pure.

TEN YEARS AGO

Canadians in every province could not help but feel a thrill of pride when they learned that a great herd of buffalo in the Wainwright park has been increasing so rapidly that although 4,000 head have in the past two years been shipped to help augment the wild herd in the North West Territories, there is still such a surplus over the capacity of our park that 2,000 more are to be disposed of. This simple statement means that the great experiment in 1907 proved to be a success beyond the highest expectations of advocates. It means that one of the largest and most magnificent animals on the earth today has been given a new lease on life. The slaughtering of these fine specimens is to take place immediately for in the fall of the year both the hides and the meat of the animals are in the best possible condition.

Officers have been established in Calgary for the Alberta government to be occupied regularly by Premier Brownlee and the other ministers for the purpose of meeting delegations and hearing representations with regard to matters concerning the southern affairs of the province.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Graham and family have moved into town over the week-end and are residing in the Star building. Mr. Graham is to be in charge of the Gas company's affairs in town.

Mr. W. Bibby has purchased a big new International truck in order to carry out the contract of hauling the buffalo meat to town from the park slaughter house. A large number of loads have already been brought to town and shipped to the P. Burns company in the city who got the contract.

Make Believe Bride

by Ruth Harley

SYNOPSIS: Maris Trevor is discouraged because Rod O'Rourke spends all his money developing an invention which he hopes will provide an income so that they can marry. Maris thinks they should enjoy the present rather than deny themselves for the future. She becomes uncertain of her love for Rod. Perhaps there would be more happiness with someone else.

"No, thank you," she said, and kept on walking.

"We need you. Come, we no hurt you. All we ask is you stop and get farmer to give us some gas. Yes?"

"Sure?" she asked, knowing as she looked at them that if she refused they would make her go with them anyway.

"Certainly," insisted the man, while the other evil-looking occupant of the car said, "That's all we want, miss. Can't go much farther without gas, and there are many stations around. Sometimes farmers ain't so generous, even if you offer them money. But they'd do it for you, I guess."

"Well, I'm afraid they'll think I'm a tramp, for I certainly did have an accident and my dress is a wreck."

A moment later she got in the car and they started coasting down hill. As they neared the end of the hill, they saw a trim farmhouse and slowly came to a stop before it.

"Now, miss, you go and tell them you want some gas, as you met with an accident, and you want to get to town. Then, after you get it, we drive you five miles more and let you go. Yes? You understand?"

But as Maris went up the path she was filled with a strange misgiving. What sort of men were these, she had been with? Why didn't one of them go and speak to the farmer? They'd been quite decent to her, put her in the back seat and paid little attention to her.

By every now and then they had whispered together. Once she heard one say, "He's a double-crosser, all right." And later the other man said, "Well, what would you expect when he's worked out this scheme to trick his own father?"

Then they had been silent so long that Maris wondered if they would ever speak again. They did twice—once to say emphatically to her, "Now, remember when they ask you where the accident happened, you tell them, 'On the long road.'"

Again one whispered in a loud voice, "Guess young Stan's got the fright of his life, trying to put us off like that. The nerve, letting us do all the dirty work and not even waiting to pay for it, but insisting on having all the profits. Well, we won't let him off so easily next time." And the dark-complexioned man had flashed his companion a evil glance.

As Maris walked up to the door of the house, she felt the concentrated gaze of several pairs of eyes on her. But in answer to her knock, the door was opened just a little crack, while Maris could hear the shuffle of heavy shoes on the floor.

"Can you let us have some gas so we can get to town?" she asked.

"We have an accident,"

"You have?" said the farmer opening the door a bit wider. "Maybe you'd rather come in and get patched up here. I'll send one of the boys out to the car."

Before she realized it, she was inside the house, surrounded by several policemen. She tried to back away. What had she landed in now, she wondered.

"Don't be scared, miss," said one of the men, "but if your value your life tell us the truth. How far have you come in that car?"

Maris looked helplessly at her. Then, sensing there was something very wrong with the men she'd been riding with, she blurted out the truth.

"We've got them," cried one of the men.

"Not yet, young fellow," cried another of the officers. "There'll be murder done if we go out now. Little girl, I hate to ask you to do it, but tell them you go back to the car and tell them—as innocent-like as kitchen where breakfast was set.

But as the driver of the car looked around, he said, "I think I'd like to wash my hands first."

"You would, would you?" cried an officer, rushing in. His two companions seized the other. "Well, you will be able to get that done in jail."

Swearing in Italian and English, the men tried to wriggle from their captors' arms, but the officer and his helpers quickly subdued them. They dragged them from the house, and shoved them into their car which had been nicely hidden beneath a three hundred year old lilac bush.

With the men safely out of the house, the farmer went to the top of the cellar steps. "Well, Mom, you and the girls better come upstairs now. That was a pretty smart bit of work, all right," he called.

Then as they sat down to breakfast the farmer told how the word had been flashed that a big truckful of milk from one of the nearby mills had been held up and driven away by the robbers. But evidently there had been some dispute about the sharing of the booty and two of the men had disappeared in a small sedan.

The driver, left senseless at the roadside, had finally come to, and sent his S.O.B. to the police. But the car with the archploters had run out of gas, and evidently taken a wrong road, so that when it had been sighted a few miles up the road the police had had time to get the word on the road and Maris had played her part in their capture.

The officers and their helpers quickly subdued them.

you can—that we're just having breakfast here and wouldn't they like to come in. Here, he sitting into one of them hot biscuits and tell them you'd like to stay.

Quickly Maris stepped outside, and running down the path, did as she was told. An angry scowl swept across the driver's face. "We don't want any breakfast. Plenty of time to get it when we get to the city. Go back and tell them that." The other man looked disappointed and started muttering. He was evidently hungry.

As they hung around, undecided, the farmer opened the door and called out, "Ain't no boys coming? The biscuits is getting cold."

"Better run along," the driver said to Maris. "We'll follow you."

Then turning to his companion, he said, "Park the gas here. I guess they're a bunch of rubes. They don't know who they're going to entertain."

By this time Maris had entered the house, and the farmer quickly told her to follow his daughter to the cellar. "It's the safest place. You've been riding with a bunch of thugs. But I reckon it'll be their last ride for a good long while."

"Well," said the farmer as the men approached the door, "we were just sitting down to breakfast and thought maybe you'd like a bite if you have been having trouble with your car. So come in and set down. We can get the gas afterwards." He showed them into the low-ceilinged

"Well, you were a mighty plucky girl to ride with them thugs, but how come you were on the road so early in the morning?"

"There, Father, Maris has told me all about it," his daughter said. "It is all right, and just as soon as she gets a cup of coffee she's going to call up her folks. She's had her own troubles, too, but I guess they're over now."

"Well, well, that's fine, and now I reckon I'd better get out to the fields or we'll never get any work done with all this excitement, for even if it's Sunday the beats must be fed."

But as the man left the table Maris turned to the farmer's wife. "I wonder if you'd let me call up Patsy now?" she said.

"Of course you may. The phone's right there," and she pointed to the hall.

But as Maris rose from the table a sudden blackness seemed to envelop her. With a cry, the farmer's wife rose and rushed to her side just in time to save her from striking her head against the table.

"The poor little girl! Quick, Tilly, bring some cold water, and then turn down the bed in the spare room. I guess all this terrible excitement's too much for her."

When Maris opened her eyes again she found herself in a cool, dormer windowed room, with snowy white curtains at the windows and a big bowl of flowers on the window ledge. She looked slowly around her. Where was she, she wondered. It was a pretty room, but how had she ever got there?

Then the generous-hearted woman in the quaint flowered-applique cotton gown who was sitting by her side said, "Feeling some better now, my dear?"

"Oh, yes," she whispered. "I'm afraid I've been an awful nuisance to you. I must get home."

"No, no, not yet. You couldn't rise just yet, but if you can tell me where your friends are, I'll call them up."

"Oh, but that would scare Patsy. I'd better talk to her myself." She tried to rise, but slumped back on the pillows again.

"There, my dear, you mustn't try just get. Won't you let me talk to your folks? I'll be mighty careful what I say—tell them just what you want me to."

"All right, I guess you'd better," Maris said, and told her Patsy's number. Then she fell asleep again.

It was late afternoon when she awoke, and through the open window drifted in the lazy hum of a lullaby and the fragrance of lavender. She closed her eyes again as once more she thought of the fate she had escaped. What a fool she had been! She'd lost Rod for of course he wouldn't be interested in her any more.

She'd lost Stan. That was different. She was only too glad that she had found out in time what a contemptible cad he was. Maybe, after all, Rod had found out his real character. She might well be congratulating herself on her escape.

Patsy had been right. Men like Stan didn't have much sense of honor where girls like her were concerned. She clenched her fists, as she thought of her escape.

Then she thought of what her crazy infatuation had cost. Her job would be gone for of course she would never go to Patsy's again. She'd spent nearly every penny in her savings account so she could be all dressed up. Now, the very thought of the clothes she had bought was hateful to her.

Once more she drifted off to sleep. Then just as dusk was falling she woke again and suddenly she sat up in bed.

The door of her bedroom was softly opened and Patsy tiptoed lightly to the bedside. "Maris, honey," she whispered as she bent over her.

"Oh, Pat, you darling, will you ever forgive me? I've been an awful fool and now when I'm stranded you're the only one I could call on." Her eyes filled with tears.

"There, Maris, there's nothing to forgive. I'm just so glad you were lucky enough to strike folks like the Dawson's. They seem the bestest people. They're insisting that Jimmy and I will stay overnight too so we won't strike all the Sunday night traffic."

"And you'll take me home with you, Patsy, even if I'm broke and—"

"Of course we will, and we're not going to say another thing about it. I know you never really loved Stan Faxon. You were just carried away by the glamour that surrounded him. But when you know all that we know about him, you'll thank your lucky stars that you never went through any marriage ceremony with him."

Maris was silent. She could not yet understand why she had fallen for Stan's love-making, why she never realized till their last ride what the expression of scorn on those lips of his signified, nor what it might mean to her to marry a man who couldn't get along without his whiskey.

She shut her eyes tightly, as she turned to Patsy. "Oh, Patsy, if only I could ever forget all this: if only I'd listened to you!"

"There, Maris, don't feel so badly. You haven't committed any crime like Stan—there, I didn't mean to tell you," she said as Maris opened her eyes wide and jumped up.

FLAVOROUS MEAT DISHES

Try serving meat in new forms. You will find that your family will appreciate the novelty. Try the following recipes:

Beef Loaf

1½ pounds round of beef
1 quart cold water
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon sage and thyme, mixed
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
Salt and pepper

Simmer the beef in the water with the salt until meat is tender. Cool. Remove bones and fat, and chop very fine. Boil the liquid until reduced to one cup. Add vinegar, sugar, sage, sauce, thyme, salt and pepper. Mix with the meat. Press into a buttered mold and leave to become thoroughly cold. Serve with tomatoes and lettuce and mayonnaise.

Stuffed Flank Steak

Have a flank steak trimmed and scored; that is, cut all over the surface in cross-criss lines. Mix together one cup bread crumbs; one small onion, chopped; one-half cup finely diced celery; one tablespoon minced parsley; one teaspoon sugar; salt and pepper to taste, and one-third cup hot water or enough to moisten. Spread this mixture over the flank steak. Roll up as tightly as possible. Tie firmly and sprinkle with flour, pepper and salt. Brown quickly in hot fat. Then place in a covered pan and bake in a moderate oven for one and one-half hours. Baste two or three times during the cooking with two tablespoons butter melted in one-third cup boiling water. When done, remove the strings. Serve with brown gravy made from the fat in the pan.

Cheesecake Lemon Tapioca

½ cup quick-cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon salt
1 quart boiling water
1 cup sugar
½ cup lemon juice (2 lemons)
Grated rind 1 lemon
1 cup cream, whipped
Add tapioca and salt to water, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add sugar, lemon juice, and lemon rind. Cool. Fold in whipped cream. Chill until thickened. Pile lightly in sherbet glasses. Garnish with raspberries. Serves eight.

GLAZED ONIONS

Peel medium-size, silver skin onions and pick them through the centers to prevent breaking while cooking. Place in boiling salted water to which a teaspoon of sugar to a quart of water has been added. Simmer until tender and drain. Pour a quart of onions, melt two tablespoons of butter in a pan, add one tablespoon of granulated sugar, and cook to the bubbling stage. Then add the onions and stir until they are well glazed.

Carrots and Cheese

Mince twelve medium-size carrots. Add a teaspoon of sugar and steam until tender. Put into a baking dish. Sprinkle liberally with cheese and a little salt and pepper. Beat three eggs and stir into a pint of milk that has been put on a stove to heat. Let the mixture thicken, then pour over the carrots and cheese. Add more cheese for a top dressing. Put the baking dish in a pan of water and place in the oven to brown.

ALMOND ICE CREAM

2½ cup sweetened condensed milk
½ cup water

1½ teaspoons almond extract

1 cup whipping cream
¼ cup finely shredded almonds
Mix sweetened condensed milk, water and almond extract thoroughly. Chill. Whip cream to custard-like consistency and fold into chilled mixture. Fold in finely shredded almonds. Pour into freezing pan. Place in freezing unit. After mixture has frozen to stiff mush (1-2 hours) remove from the refrigerator. Scrape mixture well from sides and bottom of pan. Beat two minutes. Smooth out and replace in freezing unit for one hour, or until frozen for serving (2-4 hours total freezing time).

MOCHA ICE CREAM

2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1-1½ cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk
1 cup strong, black coffee
2 cups thin cream
Melt chocolate in double boiler. Add sweetened condensed milk and stir over boiling water for five minutes until mixture thickens. Gradually add coffee and thin cream. Blend thoroughly. Cool and freeze in two quart freezer. Remove dasher. Pack in ice and salt for one hour or more after freezing. Makes 1½ quarts.

Fruited Lamb Chops

(Serves 6)
6 lamb, veal or pork chops
Melted butter
Sliced oranges
Salt
Pepper
Paprika
Trim fat from thick chops and dip in melted butter. Oil broiler well and broil chops 8 minutes. Turn and place a thick slice of peeled orange on each chop. Broil 8 or 10 minutes longer. Sprinkle generously with the seasonings. Serve hot.

Can You afford to Use More ELECTRICITY

If at present you are a user of Electricity you know that you could not afford to be without it. But, if you use it only sparingly, you are not taking full advantage of the services which are available.

Even at the basic rate Electricity is cheap; but once enough energy has been used to satisfy your minimum requirements a FEW ADDITIONAL CENTS will bring you MANY ADDITIONAL HOURS of convenience in the use of an Electric Washer, Vacuum Cleaner or Refrigerator, and of comfort and enjoyment in the use of a good Reading Lamp or the operation of your Radio.

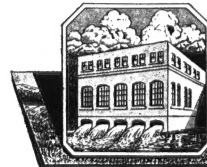

Where can you obtain greater value for so small an added cost as in the full use of your Electric Appliances? What small investment in your home will return you greater, or even equal dividends in comfort and leisure?

The more Electricity you use, the less it costs.

Our local representative will be glad to show you why.

BOBBY MILLER, CHICAGO, ILL.

DICK COY SAYS HE PREFERS THE 'LIFE SAVERS' THAT ARE MADE IN THE MINT AT WASHINGTON.

JEFF C. G. H. M.

This Week in Washington

The most expensive political campaign in the nation's history comes to an end next Tuesday. More money will have been spent by both parties in the National, Senatorial, Congressional, state and local campaigns than ever before.

(That is not to imply that there is anything improper in the spending of money by political organizations for election purposes. It costs money to pay the expenses of speakers, to pay for advertising in newspapers and on billboards, to buy time on the air, to print booklets, circulars and badges by the tens of millions, and to pay the wages of employees.

All of these expenses so far as they relate to national offices, Presidential, Senatorial or Congressional are required to be reported to the proper officials in Washington, in detail, and particular pains are taken to scrutinize them with great care and frequently to investigate them afterwards. Since the passage of the corrupt practices act, more than 20 years ago, instances have been very rare of improper or fraudulent use of money in election for such purposes as bribing voters or concealing the expenditure of campaign funds.

Practically all of the states require reports of campaign expenditures made on behalf of state, county and municipal officers, so that it is increasingly difficult for any party however well organized and financed to buy an election. There is nothing shocking, therefore, in the fact that this year's political campaigns, taken altogether, will run to around $25,000,000.

The Money Spent

Of this amount the Republican National Committee is expected to report the expenditure of $8,336,000 which is the largest amount ever spent by any party in a presidential campaign, except in 1928, when the Republican National Committee spent $9,433,000 and the Democratic National Committee, $7,152,511. This year the Democratic National Committee expenditures will run around $3,000,000. The Senatorial and Congressional Committees of the two major parties are expected to spend about $500,000 each.

Senatorial and Congressional candidates' personal expenditures will run to about $2,000,000. The minor parties, Union, Socialist, Communist, Prohibition, Farmer-Labor, etc., will probably spend among them about $3,000,000. State, county and local campaigns will account for another $8,000,000.

One of the reasons for the heavy expenditure this year is the great increase in the number of voters whom every candidate and committee is trying to reach and influence. The addition of more than a million to the registered vote of New York State led to the calling of a special session of the legislature last week for the purpose of enacting a law permitting the polls to remain open several hours later than the established closing time of 5 o'clock.

If the efforts of the various campaign committees to get out the full votes are successful, the probability is that in many of the crucial states and cities the process of counting the ballots will necessarily

STORE . . . the independent

We hear a lot about the decline of the independent small retailer. He is being crushed to the wall by the great chain stores and mail-order houses, people tell us.

Mark Granite of Newtown, Pennsylvania, thinks that isn't so. To prove that the small independent merchant has as good a chance as ever, if he is bright enough to run a store at all, he has opened an old-fashioned "general store" in his home town.

I attended the opening the other day when Mark was handing out sticks of candy to all the youngsters in town. I am convinced he is right in his general theory that a good merchant, no matter how "little" he is, does not need to fear the competition of the "chains." It's up to Mark now to prove that he is a good merchant.

ATMOSPHERE . . . makes friends

There is a character to every be prolonged. It is, therefore, quite possible that the nation will not know definitely who has been elected President until well along on Wednesday morning, Nov. 4th.

In the cities which use voting machines, such as New York, Buffalo and many of the larger cities of the Middle West, the actual vote is normally completely tabulated and recorded within an hour after the close of the polls. But with the extension of voting time in New York and the probability that it will be necessary to resort to paper ballots to supplement the work of the voting machines, the way is paved for a long delay in the reports from this and other vital centers of election night interest.

The Straw Vote Polls

In no previous campaign has there been such an extensive use of the method of trying to forecast the election by means of polls or "straw" votes. One enterprising newspaper, the Cleveland News, conducted what it calls a "poll to end all polls." That newspaper discovered that no less than 3,007 separate polls were being made, nationally or by states and localities.

Combining the results of these polls, the Cleveland News comes to the conclusion that if these straws actually do show which way the wind blows, Mr. Landon will get 307 electoral votes against Mr. Roosevelt's 220. Analysis of the major polls by others do not bear out this conclusion. Indeed, as the election day approaches, it still remains anybody's guess as to whether the President will be re-elected or Mr. Landon will go to the White House.

All of the polls and straw votes have been under more vigorous fire than ever before. Polls which show a decided trend toward Republican victory have been attacked by the Democrats and vice versa.

Much of the criticism of some of the more important polls has been based upon the allegation that they do not necessarily represent the views of actual voters. Those critics have maintained that the only way to get an accurate forecast is to poll all of the registered voters of the state or nation. The Baltimore Sun undertook to do this in the state of Maryland, with the result that its straw vote, representing about 10 per cent of the voters, showed a heavy majority for Mr. Roosevelt. But, as an eminent Republican commentator points out, nothing is easier than for a well organized party to see to it that its adherents record their preferences, while the weaker organization cannot do so effectively. Where there is a strong Republican organization the method of polling registered voters is likely to show a Republican majority and vice versa.

And there are, by this time, not a week we ought to know who is to be the next President of the United States.

store—and every other place—which for want of a better word we call "atmosphere." Either the surroundings create an atmosphere which attracts people, or they don't. The right atmosphere is a more valuable asset than many business men realize.

Mark Granite's new store has the atmosphere of the country general store of his boyhood. That is appropriate in Newtown, which was the second town established by William Penn. The people of this part of Bucks County have a feeling for history. I think the new "old" store will please them.

The merchandise is modern, of course, but the fittings do not to the plug-tobacco cutter and the round-bellied stove standing in a box of and, are such as our grandfathers knew.

COMPETITION . . . is part I have never known a good business man who was afraid of competition. I have known many business men who were always complaining about their competitors, but none of them was a really good business man.

It has been often said that nine of ten men who start in business for themselves fail. I don't know that the proportion is as high as that, but I know it is terrific.

The business experts who study the causes of failure say that about a third are due to insufficient capital, another third to incompetence and inexperience, and the rest to a variety of factors. Few fail because of competition. It is my observation that most of the business failures I know lost out because they paid more attention to spending their incomes than they did to earning them.

REGULATION . . . one viewpoint

I have never been able to see that it is any part of the function of government to protect the incompetent and inefficient against the consequences of their own inherent weaknesses. Too much sympathy is shown by social engineers on individuals who are natural-born failures. Too much political effort is aimed at making those of us who stand on our own feet take care of the ones who have proved their inability to succeed.

The only regulation of business by government for which I can find justification would be such as would insure to every man the right to fail, or succeed, as his nature may be, as the result of his own efforts.

Every legislative attempt to avert failures from the consequences of their own failings puts a premium on inefficiency and a penalty on competence.

ABILITY . . . seldom idle

I have had three men of exceptional ability working on my household. I have never known a better carpenter than Harry Ruble, a better plumber than Bill Crossler nor a better electrician than Joe Lukens.

They are among the outstanding men of our little community, because they are not only skilled at their respective trades but by reason of their personal characters. None of them "skimp" his work. They all take pride in doing a first-rate job, and in seeing the job through once it is started.

I was lucky to get their services. They had to subvert my men in between other jobs working nights and Sundays. For they are living examples of what I have always maintained, that the man of real ability and character have been demonstrated.

Many people have had two headaches that are due to eye strain and often cause poor health. These people should see their doctor. He will probably send them to a good oculist. If a dignitarian or other trouble is found, their glasses are worn, the headaches disappear and the general health improves.

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

Sometimes it is easier to change habits than to break habits. Because upholsterers insist on holding tools in their mouths, many furniture manufacturers are using mouth clips to prevent rust and consequent staining of upholstery.

"Open Pattern" plan is now being adapted to kitchen equipment. Experienced housewives have long known that, when buying china or silver, it is wise to choose an "open pattern" so that replacements and additions can be made. Recently a new "open pattern" idea has been applied to kitchen equipment in the so-called "unit plan." Under this it is possible to purchase standardized cabinets which can be added as needed or as the budget permits. Drawers or shelves provide convenient places for pots, pans, china, and other utensils and some of these are designed with metal working surfaces.

New rubber gloves for working in water have a roughened palm and finger surface to prevent precious breakables from sliding through soapy fingers. And another new idea in work gloves is of kidskin, cream-treated, so that they leave your hands soft and supple when used. Any woman will appreciate their importance.

Household Hint: After washing the piano keys and drying them with a soft cloth, rub over them with alcohol and they will remain spotless longer.
